OFFICERS HEAR ALL ABOUT THE JUAREZ AFFAIR

State Department Attributes it to Same Feeling of Unrest Which Last Year Caused the Overthrow of Diaz.

AMERICANS ARE NOT IN DANGER

One of the Significant Features of the Event is a Proclamation Issued Yesterday Naming a New President.

[Associated Press Dispatch] EL PASO, Feb. 2.—12:30 a. m.—This morning Col. Estrada, the deposed military commander at Juarez, received advice from Governor Gonzalez that an agreement had been reached whereby the rebels would return control of the city to the federal government.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1.—It is the general belief here that the Madero government faces a crisis. The president and members of the cabinet admit the rebellion headed by Emiliano Zapata has come to be the most formidable menace faced by the present government. The conduct of the campaign against the Zapatistas and the uprising at Juarez, were discussed at a special cabinet meeting this afternoon. The president was unwilling to admit the mutiny of the troops at Juarez was directly connected with the Zapatista revolution and it was agreed that Pascual Orozco and four hundred men whom he had been ordered to take from Chihuahua to Juarez will be sufficient to restore order.

"The affair is not particularly serious," said Madero. "It was a disagreeable incident but the rebellious troops are fighting under no special banner."

He expressed confidence to the Associated Press of the loyalty of Orozco and his ability to handle the situation at Juarez. To unofficial Mexico the significance of the Juarez revolt lies in the fact the insurrectionists have gained a port of entry to the United States, the identical thing for which Madero fought so many weeks. Though lacking a revolutionary propaganda further than declaring Madero has violated the promises of the "plan of San Luis Potosi," Zapata has a recruited army that now operates in the states of Morelos, Mexico, and Guerrero. Zapata in an interview in El Heraldo today said he had been fooled by Madero often and he didn't propose to be misled by further promises.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The revolt of troops at Juarez, which is regarded as important in itself, it is considered here as indicative of a general revival outside of the Mexican capital, of the feeling of unrest that existed before the Diaz administration fell. The state department and the department of justice were advised today that the trouble at Juarez grew out of the refusal of some of the garrison to submit to discharge from the military service, which would involve a return to the paths of peace. Consul Edwards reported that the federal rurales are responsible for the riot which followed the order to disarm forty per cent of the garrison. It was not marked by anti-American sentiment. Beyond an admonition to the American consuls along the border to look after the safety of Americans, there is nothing for the state department to do at this juncture but await developments. No doubt is entertained that Madero will rush an adequate force of regular troops to Juarez to restore order and protect American residents there.

EL PASO, Feb. 1.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez was proclaimed provisional president of Mexico and Madero was arraigned in bitter terms, in a proclamation circulated today among the revolting garrison at Juarez, and members of the revolutionary junta of El Paso. The proclamation is dated the "Revolutionary camp at Chihuahua, February 1, 1912" and signed by Luis Fernandez and Col. L. Salazar, chief of the field in the north.

The proclamation is taken here as another indication of a possible connection between the revolt of the Juarez garrison and the Zapata movement in southern Mexico. It is addressed to the "Valiant Sons of Chihuahua," and recites how they were among the first to second the Madero revolution to "overthrow the tyranny which for more than thirty years joked with our rights."

Later today the city council sent a message to President Taft asking for immediate protection of Americans and American interests in El Paso.

Leaders of the rebels declared tonight the garrison at Casas Grandes was enroute to Juarez to join the uprising and should arrive early tomorrow. Although outposts have been placed at South Juarez, the men under Orozco reported to be enroute from Lodge asked that the vote be taken on February 20, but after Heyburn objected, these two engaged in a spirited debate.

During Heyburn's remarks most of the democrats and a few of the republicans left the floor, but the Idaho senator said he intended to speak if he had nothing but a solo for an audience. He opposed, he declared, "railroading" important business through and was not in favor of appointing monarchs of Europe as guardians of this republic. Lodge gave notice that he would renew his motion on Monday.

Arguments were finished today, and court adjourned, the judge announcing he would read the instructions tomorrow. There was a dramatic scene in the closing argument by Assistant District Attorney Horton when the latter declared Conners' teeth mark was on the dynamite caps found in the Hall of Records alley. He said Conners had followed the coal miner's custom of clinching the cap to the fuse by means of his teeth and dared him to open his mouth. When the latter opened his mouth slightly Horton forced the defendant's mouth open, as he would a horse and compelled him to parade before the jury so all could see. He declared the imprint on the caps corresponded to the widely set teeth of the prisoner. The prosecutor's course was a veritable bombshell to the defense.

Bailey, the Burns operative, who took the stand after a fiery cross examination of his chief. For nearly two hours Bailey read from "notes" made from day to day of the remarks McGowan is alleged to have made to him, principally on a hunting trip in Canada. On one occasion he said McGowan told him he had written Wiebe that he "had come across." He said McGowan told him he only asked $25,000. Later McGowan was credited with saying he would "fix the whole Hines bunch if they didn't come across."

If they do not, the hearings will begin next week. It is believed the republicans will offer a substitute for the entire metal schedule in the senate. [Associated Press Dispatch] INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 1.—Ortie McManigal, the confessed dynamiter, who has been here several weeks adding the federal grand jury in its investigation of the alleged nationwide dynamiting conspiracy, departed secretly for Los Angeles yesterday afternoon, according to an announcement made by federal officials here tonight. He walked down one of the busiest streets of the city to the union station where he boarded a train for the west. With him were Detective Malcolm McLaren, his constant companion since his arrest, also Sheriff W. A. Hammet, and Deputy R. T. Bin, of Los Angeles. When it was announced that McManigal would be brought to Indianapolis, Hammet insisted that the greatest precaution be taken because the prisoner would be needed as a witness in the cases to be tried on the coast. A short time before reaching Indianapolis, McManigal shaved off his mustache, and in this manner sought to evade detection. It is not known whether he wore a disguise on leaving. It was announced tonight that the grand jury would adjourn until Tuesday.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 1.—Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, was before the federal grand jury almost continuously today testifying in the investigation of the dynamite conspiracy as to the disposal of the $225,000 McNamara defense fund. He had said he was ready to explain the disbursements in detail in the hope the federation's books might be taken promptly to Washington, but District Attorney Miller said that the government would keep the accounts several days to prepare for the future. More than 3,000 entries of receipts of contributions, with a much smaller number of expenditures are shown by the books, according to Morrison.

"The expenditures include $170,000 paid through Attorney Darrow as reported to union officials some time ago," said Morrison. "The amount was correct at the time, though Darrow" received other payments since." It was said the examination of the federation's finances was confined entirely to the handling of the defense fund, no inquiry being made into the organization's affairs prior to the arrest of J. J. McNamara.
